The research field embodies two main sets : first of all, the knowledges and practices which fund the landscape working actions for professionals ; secondly, the exploration of public actions and collective management of landscape on a territorial basis. The various disciplinary fields (ecology, geography, ethnology, sociology, political sciences, history of architecture and urban planning, landscape design,...) of the LAREP's researchers cross their research fields on landscape architecture and contribute to the interdisciplinary character of the laboratory. The projects developed by the LAREP take fully part to the actual scientific debate about milieu, environment space, territoriality, and human societies.
