European Master of science of Viticulture and Enology (Vinifera)

This specialisation trains future wine-growing managers. The subjects studied will provide in-depth knowledge about the vine and wine, and also winery management. The course is in English and forms part of an Erasmus Mundus programme. The second year is carried out in a foreign university.

Vinifera EuroMaster is organized by a consortium of Universities and Graduate Schools named "EMaVE Consortium". All these institutes are famous for their research activities and their links with the professionals of the vine and wine sector, in the major producing countries of quality wine in Europe: France, Germany, Italy, Portugal and Spain. The 15 Higher Education Institutions which participate to EMaVE Consortium are associated at national level in six groups (EMaVE Partners), each one being represented by a leader institution.

Currently, Montpellier SupAgro is the co-ordinating establishment of the EMaVE Consortium.
