Launching of first international Moco Vine&Wine

Montpellier SupAgro, a French higher education institute in agricultural science, greatly involved in the sector of the vine and wine, launches the first free bilingual Moco to discover the vine & wine science. The brand new pedagogical resource leads students and professionals to understand the complexities of wine supply chain in France and worldwide.

Moco Vine&Wine is available in English and French, subtitled in Mandarin Chinese. A large international target of the vine and wine sector enthusiasts will be able to follow the course.

The course has been designed to discover the basis of vine and wine sciences for students with B.Sc. and professionals who wish to extend their field of knowledge. Enrollment open until February 17, 2018.

Four teaching units or modules will lead you from the wine-making process to wine-tasting - 'Vine Biology', 'Viticulture', 'Oenology', 'the Wine Industry and Economy'. Starting on January 31st 2018 you will have 5 weeks of work to accomplish. A certificate of completion will be delivered, for those who successfully complete the course and the evaluation process.

Led by Montpellier SupAgro, the concept and the creation of this Moco was achieved through teamwork between the three top French schools of Agriculture 'Les Grandes Ecoles d'Agronomie' renowned for the quality of teaching and scientific knowhow in viticulture and oenology: AgroSup Dijon, Bordeaux Sciences Agro and Toulouse INP-Ensai. A group of 30 scientists (researchers, lecturers-researchers, pedagogical engineers) from 12 research units connected with those schools and the French Institute for Agricultural Research (Inra), provided scientific and pedagogical support to achieve this innovative project.

Moco Vine&Wine was made possible through the support of « Agropolis Fondation » and Agreenium, the French Institute for Agricultural, Forestry and Veterinary Sciences, as funding partners.
